Dear Andi Ausrotas:

Congratulations! We are pleased to inform you that you have achieved the designation of IAAP – Certified Professional in Web Accessibility (CPWA). Your hard work, study, and perseverance helped you achieve a significant goal – recognition of your skills and knowledge as both a Certified Professional in Accessibility Core Competencies and a Web Accessibility Specialist. You are one of only 1053 CPWAs that have been awarded worldwide

The IAAP CPWA program aspires to the following goals:

- To define what cross-disciplinary conceptual knowledge about disabilities, accessibility and universal design, and accessibility-related standards, laws, and management strategies each accessibility professional is expected to know.
- To define an intermediate level of technical knowledge and expertise an intermediate web accessibility specialist is expected to know.
- To increase the quality and consistency of the work performed by both an accessibility professional and a web accessibility specialist.
- To provide accessibility professionals and web accessibility specialists with a credential as evidence of their accessibility, universal design, legal, contextual, technical, and programmatic knowledge as these relate to accessibility in the physical, business, digital, and legal environments.
- To provide employers, the accessibility community, and the public with a metric to measure and assess the competency of accessibility professionals and web accessibility specialists who are current and/or prospective employees.
- To provide colleges, universities, and vocational programs with clear educational outcomes and a curriculum outline for teaching accessibility in cross-disciplinary programs and web accessibility in technical programs.
- To strengthen the community of practice among web accessibility specialists.

Your achievement reflects your commitment to accessibility as a profession and web accessibility best practices. Remaining current in your field by maintaining your certification through your CPWA continuing education and professional development program will not only enhance your career, but also will allow you to improve the lives of others around the world.

On behalf of the IAAP Certification Committee, I congratulate you on your achievement. We look forward to working with you in the coming years.

Sincerely,

Samantha Evans, CAE, MBA
